HOW TO PLAY

What Am I? Traditional

Players will pair up and compete as a team—one person will be the guesser, one person will provide the clues. Each virtual party guest will need their own stack of cards. Set your timer for 60 seconds. The guesser holds a card up to their forehead so they can't see what's written on it, and the clue giver can say anything to their partner to help them figure out what the word is, except for the word itself or any reference to the word (e.g., “The first three letters are...”). When 60 seconds are up, the guesser becomes the clue provider and vice versa for another 60-second round. The first team to get through their stack of cards, or the team that gets through the most cards, wins. The virtual party host keeps track of the time.

What Am I? Host Driven

The virtual party host is the only one who has the cards. The guesser closes their eyes, and the host shows the card to all the other players. Every virtual party guest, one at a time, gives a one-word clue to the guesser. The guesser can guess after any clue, and can offer a final guess after all clues are given. If they get it right, they get a point. The virtual party host keeps track of the points. At the end, move to the next guesser. Play as many rounds as needed.
